~ Leadership and engagement
The King’s Fund has published 'Leadership and engagement for improvement in the NHS: together we can'. This year-long review argues that a new style of leadership in the NHS could deliver lower mortality, better patient experience and outcomes, and financial savings. The report says that the NHS should move away from the predominant ‘pace-setting’ style of leadership based on meeting targets and makes a business case for a new model of leadership based on stronger engagement between staff, clinicians and patients. Drawing on eight commissioned papers and numerous submissions, the review highlights the links between organisational performance and leaders who engage staff, patients and others in improving care.  http://www.kingsfund.org.uk/publications/leadership_review_12.html

~ The power of information: putting all of us in control of the health and care information we need
This information strategy from the Department of Health sets a ten-year framework for transforming information for the NHS, public health and social care. The focus of the strategy is on improving access to information, including a commitment that people will be able to access their GP records online by 2015.  http://www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_134181

~ RCN launches new technology guides
The Royal College of Nursing has published five new multimedia guides to help nursing staff utilise technology to complement their clinical practice. These include using; text message services, websites, and telehealth. The RCN says that people expect health care to meet their needs quickly and be tailored to their requirements and technology helps to deliver these expectations, putting the power back in the hands of the patient.  http://www.rcn.org.uk/development/publications
~ Health Committee: education, training and workforce planning
This report states that, though plans to reform handling of the £5billion annual training budget are welcome in principle the Government plans to reform education, training and workforce planning in the NHS are unclear and lack crucial detail. The report examines and makes recommendations on areas such as: the challenge of workforce planning, the organisation of education, training and workforce planning, and the funding of education and training.

~ Nursing and Care Quality Forum
The Nursing and Care Quality Forum’s initial recommendations to the Prime Minister have recently been published. The independent Forum, made up of a range of experts on nursing and care quality working across all settings, aims to improve the quality of nursing care across all care settings based on the following themes.
- to promote accountable nurse leaders across the NHS
- to encourage the right culture and the right values
- to involve, listen to, hear and respond to feedback from patients
- to make sure that nurses have the time to give high-quality care to patients.

~ Friends and family
"Friends and Family test" to improve patient care From April 2013, patients will be asked a simple question: whether they would recommend hospital wards, accident and emergency units or general practices to a friend or a relative based on their treatment. The answers will be published to allow the public to compare healthcare services. The test will be developed with local hospitals and GPs and will include any exclusions e.g. patients in intensive care.

~ Snapshot survey of healthcare associated infections (HCAI) reveals overall drop in infections down to 6.4 per cent
The Health Protection Agency (HPA) is today publishing the results of the fourth HCAI Point Prevalence Survey (PPS) and also the first National Survey on Antibiotic use in England. This report provides a snapshot of the levels of healthcare-associated infections (HCAI) and levels of antibiotic use in hospital Trusts in England in Autumn 2011. This is also the first survey to include hospitals from the independent sector.

~ Quality, Innovation and Value in Cardiac Rehabilitation
This interactive digital resource, published online by NHS Improvement captures all the learning from the development, roll out and implementation of the Commissioning Pack for Cardiac Rehabilitation together with other leading NHS Improvement work driving up quality and efficiency in CR services
